Agenda Items

1. Approval of minutes from previous meetings (skipped, since the previous minutes were not sent out in time for the meeting)
2. Treasury and Membership update: We have a new sponsor: plausible.io.
Membership numbers: Basic: 912, Annual Supporting: 135, Lifetime Supporting: 17, Managing and Contributing: 18, Board: 7
3. Unanimous consent votes: none scheduled.
4. Board elections update: Number of votes cast so far: 63 (out of 182 eligible). The click-through rate of the email notice was 70, and 132 opened the email.
5. Google Summer of Code: the EEF was unfortunately turned down this year. More insight into why and how to improve our chances for next year needed.
6. Maxim presented a bit more detail around the CI project proposal (the proposal is still work in progress). Regarding budget allocation for implementation (and further maintenance): the plan right now is to implement the project using volunteers (already in place) - but there will most likely be a need for maintenance once it is up and running, and possibly we should try to find someone that could be paid to do this work. Kenneth noted that he thinks the project will be good for the community and does not see a conflict with the OTP team.

7. Alistair declared the meeting adjourned at 16:39 UTC.
